

Cregeen's proverbs and sayings

These Manx proverbs and sayings are assembled from Archibald Cregeen, A Dictionary of the Manx Language..., Douglas: Quiggin, etc., 1835. The translations are mostly from the edition revised by J. J. Kneen and others, published in 1910, reprinted by Yn Çeshaght Ghailckagh, Ilkley: Moxon Press, 1984. I have revised the capitalization and punctuation, and added cedillas (ç), but otherwise left the 1835 spelling unchanged.<sup>1</sup> Nearly all of Cregeen's proverbs and sayings are collected, with some others, and translated, in G. W. Wood's article mentioned in footnote 2 below. The numbers in column 3 below correspond to the numbering in Wood's article. The symbol ~ means that the form of the proverb or saying in Wood is a little different from that in Cregeen. Where the translations differ, those of Kneen et al. are generally superior, though not always. Where Wood's translations seem better, I have included them with the initials GWW. A few translations are my own, indicated with MW.
